Jayne Tells Of Long Night On Tiny Atoll

By BEN FUNK
NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield described from a hospital bed Friday her thoughts of a night perched on a tiny coral atoll after a gay water-skiing party turned sour.
"I thought I was going to die," she said as she recalled lying there cold, frightened and splashed by waves from a rising tide.
Shapely tanned legs covered with mosquito and sandfly bites showed beneath the plain white hospital gown as the actress told reporters of her night-long ordeal.
Are Found
Miss Mansfield, 28, her weight-lifting husband, Mickey Hargitay, 32, and a friend, Jack Drury, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., hotel publicist, were found by a search plane Thursday morning after they had swum and waded from the atoll to lonely Rose Island, 200 yards away.
Hargitay and Drury were treated for cuts and coral rock scrapes. Jayne was ordered hos-

Ike Clears Air On Scott Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said in a telegram Friday that "I regret it very much" if Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., was offended by any "speculation" regarding a telephone conversation between Eisenhower and Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa.
Eisenhower's telegram was sent to Van Zandt and was made public by Van Zandt's office here.
Eisenhower said in his telegram that "in my conversation with Senator Scott about this matter many frank and spirited comments were informally passed."
"None of these was in any way intended as personally derogatory to you. If any speculation about my telegram has given you cause for offense or hurt I regret it very much for I have always held you in personal regard . . ."
Then Repeats
Eisenhower then repeated the telegram he had sent to Scott.
Earlier in the day, Van Zandt issued a statement saying that Eisenhower's telegram to Scott, made public previously, had "cleared the air" and that now all "right-thinking Republicans" can join in working for a GOP victory in Pennsylvania in November.
Van Zandt's earlier statement said:
"It is gratifying that President Eisenhower's telegram to Senator Scott exposes to the sunlight of truth the erroneous story the senator conveyed regarding former President Eisenhower's reputed

New Attempt At Education Aid Launched

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new attempt to get federal aid for public schools was launched Friday. Sponsors hoped it will attract bipartisan support in Congress and widespread public backing.
The first stirring of activity in a field that has been frozen in controversy since last summer came at a news conference called by Reps. Cleveland M. Bailey, D-W. Va., and Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J.
Bailey unveiled a $500-million-a-year program designed to avoid any federal control of education and quiet the religious controversy that has snarled other school bills.
Reasonable Hope
Without specifically endorsing Bailey's proposal, Frelinghuysen said it offers a reasonable hope for getting started on some sort of legislation to aid the schools.
"The important thing is to get off dead center," he said.
Also present at the news conference was George J. Hecht, a magazine publisher who has led several citizens' drives on behalf of education legislation. Hecht said a "large, representative, bipartisan committee" is being formed to help spur Bailey's program.
He named James B. Conant, president emeritus of Harvard, William Benton, former Democratic senator from Connecticut and now an encyclopedia publisher, and Arthur Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare in the Eisenhower Administration, as other members of the committee.
The next step will be a hearing Feb. 27 before an education subcommittee headed by Bailey. The main purpose of this will be to show exactly how much money the school districts in several representative states would get under Bailey's proposal.
Bailey's basic proposal is to allot to each state a sum equal to 2 per cent of its expenditures on public schools, with the state free to use the federal funds as it sees fit.

Report Claims Luciano Died By Poisoning

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Italian authorities said Friday they are depending on an expert's medical report to tell them whether vice lord Charles (Lucky) Luciano was poisoned. Telesera, a Rome afternoon paper, said an autopsy has shown Luciano swallowed potassium cyanide, either wittingly or unwittingly.
Authorities here, commenting cautiously on the report, contributed to the mystery by avoiding flat denial or confirmation of the Telesera story.
Luciano dropped dead Jan. 26 while at Naples' airport meeting a visitor. Italian narcotics detectives, investigating his alleged links with a $150-million international drug ring, had questioned him only a few hours earlier. One detective had trailed him to the airport, where he collapsed shortly after sipping a soft drink.
No Information
Generoso Cuomo, the state prosecutor, said an expert's appraisal of the autopsy "is not yet complete. Therefore, one cannot speak of poisoning."
Implicit in this comment was the admission that the authorities are withholding judgment on the cause of death until Prof. Pietro Verga, a Naples University pathologist, turns out his final report.
Verga, who performed the autopsy two days after Luciano died, also was asked by newsmen about the Telesera report.
"I have made no statement to anyone," he said. "I have not completed my examinations."
Soon after the autopsy was performed, authorities said preliminary findings indicated Luciano, 64, died of a heart attack. He was known to have had a heart condition. But authorities said then medical experts were making a more complete laboratory test on certain organs.

FBI Arrests Two More In Brod'ville Bank Theft

THE FBI, continuing its investigation of the Monroe Security Bank & Trust Co., branch bank robbery at Brodheadsburg last Oct. 20, yesterday announced the arrests of two more men.
One of the men arrested actually took part in the robbery, it was reported, while the fourth is being held as an accomplice. A fifth man is also being sought by the FBI.
Originally, only three men had been suspected in the robbery as only three had entered the branch bank at Brodheadsburg during a bright Autumn morning. They escaped with $8,659.54.
Those arrested were all migrant workers on a potato farm in the Brodheadsburg area.

Kintner Donates $25,000 To Fund

ROBERT E. Kintner, president of the National Broadcasting Co. and a native of Stroudsburg, has donated $25,000 to the hospital expansion program of Monroe County General Hospital "in loving memory of his mother, Lillian S. Kintner."
Mrs. Kintner, who was born in 1882 and died in 1930, was a lifelong resident of the area. She taught Sunday School at the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg, was a member of the Stroudsburg Women's Club and was active in school work.
Recovery Beds
The memorial established in her name will be the recovery intensive care complex. It will provide recovery beds for post-operative cases close to nurses, utilities and resuscitative equipment.
Glass enclosed intensive care rooms will be available for medically critical patients. The area will be staffed for round-the-clock care and observation.
Kintner, a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, formerly wrote a prize-winning Washington column in collaboration with Joseph Alsop and was Washington correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune.
Kintner was also president of

Scott Indicates He Plans To Run

Earlier in the evening, Scott stood firm on his statement that former President Eisenhower has great confidence in the senator and hopes the entire state GOP party will rally to him.
Scott disclosed the content of a telegram that Eisenhower sent to Van Zandt. Earlier this week, Van Zandt formed a ticket along with State Superior Court Judge Robert E. Woodside for governor.
Judge Rules In Favor Of Lillian Reis
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Celebrity Room, owned by Lillian Reis, should not lose its liquor license, Judge Edward J. Griffiths ruled Friday in Quarter Sessions Court.
The State Liquor Control Board revoked the license April 4, 1961, on grounds the club sold liquor after hours and Miss Reis falsified her application for the liquor license. The club has remained open pending the appeal.
The two Hall brothers were slated for hearings before U. S. commissioners and will be detained until a removal hearing can be conducted, the FBI said.
The roles the men played, in the holdup have not been detailed.

MORE WORK—Walter Ervey, custodian at Stroudsburg First National Bank, found more work outside the building yesterday when a snowstorm hit the Poconos. From 4-6 inches blanketed the area during the day. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Snowstorm Hits With 4-6 Inches

Four to six inches of snow was dumped on the Poconos yesterday with rain mixed with snow creating hazardous driving conditions in the mountains last night.
The snowfall caused buses to be late, especially passenger liners coming to Stroudsburg from New York and Philadelphia. Some buses were an hour and a half late in arriving in Stroudsburg.
Trains also were running a little behind schedule.
State Highways Department crews were out yesterday and last night, chiding main roads before working their way into the side arteries.
Traffic was at a minimum as motorists decided to stay home instead of battling the slippery highways.
Cancellations of social and athletic events were plentiful as sponsors of programs postponed activities planned for last night.
Last night's rain mixed with snow turned the roads into slick conditions, causing motorists to drive at a slow pace. Some drivers got stuck momentarily.
Weather observers said this was the largest of five snowfalls this winter. A fall of two inches in December was the largest prior to yesterday's accumulation.
A snowstorm swept across Pennsylvania Friday, playing havoc with transportation for a time, but its intensity diminished through the night.
The U. S. Weather Bureau at Philadelphia said a complex low pressure system over Maryland and the Virginia capes continued to move eastward.
Before the storm began dying down it left as much as six inches of snow in parts of the state.
In a few areas the snow was mixed with sleet and rain.
By dusk Scranton had two inches on the ground.
It was slushy and wet at Union-

Misgivings In Anti-Missiles Held Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. disarmament chief said Friday new information on the 1961 Soviet atomic tests shows the Reds, with another test series, might pass the West in the nuclear arms race unless the West tests too.
The disarmament agency director, William C. Foster, expressed particular misgivings that the Soviets might come up first with a missile able to shoot down attacking intercontinental missiles.
The development of such an anti-intercontinental ballistic missile by the Soviets without a comparable Western advance could, in the opinion of many Western strategists, greatly alter the power balance in favor of the Communists.
Nuclear Issue
Foster's statement highlighted a day of continuing controversy over the nuclear test issue which saw these other developments:
Russia—The Soviets remained silent on Thursday's proposal by President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for a three-power foreign ministers meeting on halting the nuclear weapons contest. At the same time Moscow roundly criticized the United States and Britain for their moves toward resuming testing in the atmosphere.
France—The De Gaulle government announced it would not join in the U. S.-British appeal for a foreign ministers meeting. And it said the 18-nation general disarmament conference starting in Geneva March 14, in which France is a listed participant, shows little promise of bringing about "a positive contribution to the problem of disarmament."
The French have long maintained that true disarmament would come not through a halt to testing nuclear devices, but through a ban on the weapons themselves and the means to deliver them.
Japan—As expected, the Japanese government said it would protest to Washington if the United States resumes atmospheric testing. Kennedy has said he has not made a final decision to do so but has indicated he will give a go-ahead order shortly.
Note Of Regret
Britain—Conservative newspapers generally agreed, though with a note of regret, that further western atmospheric tests seem necessary for free world security in the face of the Soviet testing. Meanwhile some 1,000 demonstrators on the other side of the issue marched on the U. S. Embassy, some chanting "No more tests on Christmas Island." Macmillan Thursday announced preparedness for U. S. use of the British-held island for testing.

JFK's Brother In Belgium

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Edward M. Kennedy, brother of the U. S. President, arrived Friday on the first stop of what he called a private fact-finding tour.
Kennedy told reporters he will meet with Belgian students, trade union leaders and European common market officials during his stay.

County GOP Chiefs Air Views On Hugh Scott

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Bulletin asked county Republican chairmen around the state Friday for their views on U. S. Sen. Hugh Scott as a candidate for governor. Replies included:
John P. McCord, Schuylkill County: "I am now, I have been, and I will be for Sen. Scott."
Richard C. Frame, Venango County: "... It's my opinion that to win we have to have a stronger ticket than one headed by Bob Woodside) Superior Court Judge Robert E. Woodside. I am for the draft-Scott movement."
Henry E. Riggs, Northampton County: "We're the original-original Scott backers."
Parko Unangst, Monroe County: "I am still for State Sen. Bill (William Z.) Scott. I have no comment on Hugh Scott."
(Editor's note: William Z. Scott represents Monroe County in the senate at Harrisburg.)
Martin J. Bowman, Columbia County: "I personally feel Sen. Scott would be a strong candidate ... The Woodside-Van Zandt (Congressman James E. Van Zandt) end-around play was behind the scenes maneuver and I personally don't want to be invited to Harrisburg to kiss the bride."
Theodore F. Freed, York County: "... We took a poll of the committee recently and the preponderance was for Scott."
Carl O. Brown, Cameron County: "We were disappointed when we heard that Woodside and Van Zandt had teamed up. Woodside is the Old Guard. I personally would support Scott if it came to a primary fight. But we'll back whom-ever the party picks."
Clinton Lister, Fulton County: "I am 100 per cent in favor of Sen. Scott. I don't believe in judge running for governor."
John W. English, Erie County: "... We're for the Woodside-Van Zandt ticket."
Happy To Support
G. Gilbert Hazlett, Chester County: "We would be happy to support Sen. Scott if he is chosen as the party's candidate ... But we're making no commitments at the present time."
John A. Beauchamp, Crawford County: "... We're going to set back and watch things take shape."
Robert A. Evans, Franklin County: "I won't commit myself until I find out definitely if Scott is going to run ... The people in the county seem to favor Van Zandt."
Sylvester J. Greco, Beaver County: "... Let's say I would be sympathetic to Scott's candidacy."
Emil Colquist, Clinton County: "We're satisfied with the Woodside-Van Zandt ticket. It was astonishing to hear of Gen. Eisenhower's support of Scott. Everything is mixed up now."
H. Earl Pitzer, Adams County: "We have an open mind right now."
J. Wayne Manspeaker, Bedford County: "I have nothing to say."
E. Dallas Leininger, Berks County: "We are going to take a wait-and-see attitude."
Frederick E. Ziegler, Bucks County: "We're still up in the air."
Joseph R. Holliday, Blair County: "I think the drafting of Sen. Scott is the only solution that will bring about a Republican victory."
Donald K. Rinker, Huntingdon County: "No statement until our committee gets together."
Noncommittal
George M. Knouse, Juniata County: "I have to be noncommittal right now."
William E. Rice, Warren County: "The people are strong supporters of James Van Zandt. But there is also an element of support for other candidates ... our representatives ... are uncommitted as of now."
Louis Pursley, Union County: "My county has its own preferred candidate but regardless of who is chosen for the slate, I am sure the county will carry him to victory by a wide margin."
William C. Campbell, Mercer County: "... Sen. Scott has convinced some Republicans that he is the only one that can win—this is not true. The real issue is who is going to control the state party: Sen. Scott or George Bloom."
(Bloom is state chairman.)
Stanley R. Saylor, Snyder County: "I've always thought Sen. Scott was our strongest candidate ..."
Silas J. Sheerer, Sullivan County: "... I think he (Scott) is the best candidate as far as this county is concerned ..."
Pike County
Clifton U. Berger, Pike County: "I have no official comment at this time but I can say I'll be for who ever the state chairman eventually backs."
Richard A. Snyder, Lancaster County: "... I would say for the moment Sen. Scott has caught the imagination of a large number of Republicans."
James E. Staudinger, Montgomery County: "No comment."
L. F. Burlein, Wayne County: "No comment."
Arthur W. Stroup, Mifflin County: "No comment."
R. Wallace Yohn, Montour County: "No comment."
Henry W. Lark, Northumberland County: "No comment."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:12; Proverbs 1:8; Mark 7:9-13; Luke 2:39-51; John 19:25-27

God told the people to honor their parents. Solomon reinforced this by telling his children to hear his instruction and not to reject their mother's teaching.—Exodus 20:12; Proverbs 1:8.

The hypocritical Pharisees criticized Christ's disciples for not eating without ritual washing. Christ rebuked the Pharisees for using such rituals as an excuse for not caring for their parents.—Mark 7:9-13.

After visiting Jerusalem, the boy Christ remained to discuss with the temple rabbis, unbeknownst to Mary and Joseph. When they found Him He "was subject unto them" as a dutiful son.—Luke 2:39-51.

At the cross, even in the midst of His terrible suffering, Christ showed His true honor for His mother by asking John to care for her.—John 19:25-27.

GOLDEN TEXT: Exodus 20:12.

Racial Brotherhood

A silent sermon is being preached in many places today on racial brotherhood.

The method was started by an Ohio man who found it difficult to convey the message by spoken words. He resorted to an unspoken technique.

It has since spread widely, with both Protestant and Roman Catholic groups giving it a boost.

Its basis is a little printed card, and a small bronze lapel pin with an engraving on it showing two hands clasping in front of the Christian cross.

An uncounted and growing number of Americans now are carrying the card, and wearing the pin as a symbol of commitment to interracial unity.

They call themselves "brothers." Whenever anyone asks about the pin, they can either explain its meaning or merely show the card.

It says, in part:

"We know that when we are separated from one another, we are separated from Jesus Christ himself. He will seek continually to accept all men as we have been accepted by Him."

There is no organizational setup of membership list involved in the movement, but it has been picked up and expanded by a number of church offices, in the North, South and Midwest.

The movement was begun by five members of the Church of the Advent in Cincinnati, at the behest of one of them, Eric Van Hagen, a writer, poet and a victim of cerebral palsy.

Back at the time of the 1957 Little Rock, Ark., crisis on school integration, he wanted to do something to improve race relations.

However, because of his ailment he couldn't "witness as most of us can by activities and conversation," related another of the group, Charles M. Judd, Cincinnati business executive.

"He wanted to follow a discipline of prayer and wear a pin which people could ask about. If a card should be shown to answer questions, it also could have a place in the South, since there are people there who also wish to witness but can't because they would lose their place in the community."

Today's Lesson: Christian Family Life

By N. Speer Jones

IN THIS DAY the Lord's Fifth Commandment is probably more important than ever before. With the advances in medical science, the life span has increased enormously, virtually doubling what it was in Christ's time—and it promises to increase still more.

With this increased life span comes an added burden for those in the middle-age bracket, for often their parents are still living but in need of considerable care. They also usually have their own children to care for.

That this care of one's parents can often be burdensome and trying, especially in cases of long illness and senility, is obvious. It may be difficult to "honor thy father or mother" if that father or mother is hardly the father or mother we have known—when he or she is rendered a caricature of his former self by age and illness.

To help in this problem we must consider the meaning of the word "honor." It involves reverence, obedience, gratitude and—most important—love. Obedience may outgrow, but not love. In a way, we may say that such care is a privilege that it enables us to return a fraction of the loving care given us during our more or less helpless childhood by our parents.

When we truly honor our aging parents, we look for ways in which they can be useful, instead of emphasizing their dependence upon us. Many "middle-agers" have discovered what a marvelous role their parents can fulfill, for example, in training their children. For one thing older people usually have a sense of time which is more akin to the child's than those in the middle years.

Many parents complain that their children do not honor them, but are brash and assy. It is the responsibility of the parent to teach the child to honor him; the child cannot know this unless it is taught, chiefly via obedience at first. Paradoxical though it may seem, the child, in yielding his will, learns mastery over it, and thus acquires maturity.

With regard to some specific points in today's lesson: Mark 7:9-13 recites the habit, promoted by the Pharisees, of using service to God as an excuse for not caring properly for one's parents. Christ points out that the best service to God in this case is not the fulfilling of a ritual gift, but in fulfilling one's obligations as children.

Rev. Marcus To Supervise Missionary Activities

NEW YORK—Rev. Chester L. Marcus, Cleveland, has been named to supervise missionary activities of the United Church of Christ in Africa.

Election of the Mississippi-born Negro to the post of secretary for Africa of the United Church Board for World Ministries was announced here today by Rev. Dr. Alford Carleton, executive vice-president. Rev. Marcus will assume his new post in New York City April 1.

Rev. Marcus, the first Negro chosen by an American mission board to head an overseas field, succeeds Dr. John A. Reuling, who was Africa secretary of the Board for 15 years. Dr. Reuling's election as general secretary for missions was also announced by Dr. Carleton.

The United Church of Christ is a union of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Congregational Christian Churches. The Board for World Ministries, founded in 1810 as The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, is the oldest Christian overseas missionary society in America.

In Africa it has founded churches and supports educational, agricultural and medical missions in Angola, Ghana, Southern Rhodesia, Togo and the Union of South Africa.

In announcing the election of the Rev. Marcus, Dr. Carleton pointed out that the Board has sent Negroes as missionaries to several lands, including countries in Africa. "In the modern world, race can hardly be a consideration when appointments are made," Dr. Carleton said. "Rev. Marcus has been named to supervise African missions because he is superbly qualified for this particular job."

"It is fortunate, however, that an American Negro is equipped right now to assume this position in relation to Africa. The most significant aspect of African affairs today is the new leadership that Negroes are assuming in all walks of life. It is important both to Africans and Americans that American Negroes can share in this development."

Since 1957 Rev. Marcus has been secretary for racial and cultural relations of the United Church Council for Christian Social Action, and before that held the same post in the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

He has been the representative of the Council on the board of the Greater Minneapolis Interfaith Fair Housing Program. This unique social experiment is aimed at accelerating the process of desegregation in the area and discovering new methods of fighting discrimination in housing.

He also administers a United Church scholarship program that provides grants to make it possible for qualified Negro students to attend denominationally related colleges that have predominantly white student bodies.

Recently Rev. Marcus returned to the United States after a year of observation and teaching in Africa.

He is a member of the executive committee of the Department of Racial and Cultural Relations of the National Council of Churches. A frequent lecturer and writer, he has conducted workshops and institutes on racial and cultural relations throughout the country.

Born in Swiftwater, Miss., in 1917, Rev. Marcus graduated from Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College in his native state. He earned his Bachelor of Divinity degree at the Lincoln University Theological Seminary, Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, in 1943 and did graduate study at Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Ordained in 1943 in the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., he was minister of Washington Street Presbyterian Church, Reading, Pennsylvania, from 1943 to 1954.

Catholic priests and Anglican, Presbyterian and United Lutheran ministers participated. Father Breen said they intend to meet annually, and perhaps include laymen, but first "there must be some meeting of minds on questions of doctrine. Otherwise it becomes just an exchange of ignorance."

He added that among laity should be developed a sense of urgency for Christian unity and awareness of the harm done the Christian cause by religious divisions.

Religion Today Tomorrow May Be Too Late

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer
The big push of the century is on to reinforce Christianity in Latin America.

Much bracing up needs to be done there, authorities agree, and the job is under way.

Roman Catholicism, its traditional strength in the area admittedly strained, is mounting an effort of unprecedented scope to revitalize church life there.

The task demands "a decisive program on the part of everyone," says Pope John XXIII. "Tomorrow it could be too late."

At the same time, Protestantism, now indigenous on Latin American soil, is increasing its work to expand a field that already is its fastest growing in the world. It "offers the greatest challenge of our day to the missionary enterprise," says a report in the denominational journal, Presbyterian Survey.

Contrary to implications, the general emphasis is not on competition between the two branches of Christianity.

Both Catholics and Protestants cite a developing cooperative spirit, in the face of mutual foes. They see their problems not so much in each other as in religious ignorance, secularism, communism, social abuses and paganism.

South America, implanted with Catholicism by the 16th century Spanish and Portuguese conquistadores, has a swift-spiraling population of nearly 200 million. About 90 per cent—180 million—are baptized Catholics.

This is more than a third of the church's world membership.

Parson To Parson

By R. G. MacLeod

OUR HABIT of watching television has quite an effect on our children. To them the commercial is better than the show. They memorize the patter, and it pops out in regular conversation. Just the other day I heard a four year old's mother scold him for making a mess of his toys scattering them all over the floor.

"Who made this shambles?" she asked.

The little fellow replied, "That little old Dirt-Maker Me!"

Then there is the one: "The wine like Grandma used to make."

I never could quite get the picture of my grandmother standing in a tub, squishing grapes between her toes.

Then perhaps I didn't know her well enough!

Ever try to purchase the peanut butter of your choice with the small fry tagging along?

Most assuredly you will wind up buying the kind that was advertised on his or her's favorite television show.

Quality doesn't matter. They saw this brand on their illuminated magic tube and no other will do!

Brainwashing! What else?

One television show that restores one's faith in the medium is "College Bowl." This show is a question and answer program between two colleges with the winner getting a scholarship grant and a chance to meet a new challenger the next week.

I sit and watch this program for an hour Sunday afternoons and am constantly amazed at just how stupid I am!

If I can answer three or four questions during the 60 minutes I give myself a mental silver star!

Here, at last, is a programme exalting our institutions of learning for what they are—schools of academic study.

All schools have a sports team to interest people in their physical activities—football, baseball, basketball, etc., but the universities and colleges have nothing to show their skill at providing a sound all-round education.

Why leave the skill of intelligence out?

We have good schools and students here in Monroe County. Possibly an interest could be created within our boundaries with the "Local High School Bowl." Competition between schools in this field of endeavor would certainly indicate brains are just as much a part of life as brawn. Are you with me, educators?

Do you know what "P.K." or "M.K." means? Well, this is Bible colloquial slang for "Preacher's Kid" or "Missionary's Kid." It seems that there is a difference in status or something whether your folks are "home workers or foreign workers."

My daughter is a "P.K." (Photographer's Kid).

Low man on the totem pole?

Clergymen Join In Prayers

MONTREAL—Clergy of many faiths joined at the University of Montreal in prayers for Christian unity, when Father Russell Breen, chaplain of the McGill University Newman Club, spoke.

Catholic priests and Anglican, Presbyterian and United Lutheran ministers participated.

Father Breen said they intend to meet annually, and perhaps include laymen, but first "there must be some meeting of minds on questions of doctrine. Otherwise it becomes just an exchange of ignorance."

He added that among laity should be developed a sense of urgency for Christian unity and awareness of the harm done the Christian cause by religious divisions.

164 Pints Collected In Blood Drive

HEAVY SNOWS didn't keep donors away from the Stroudsburg Lions Club Blood Drive yesterday as 164 pints were collected despite the inclement weather.

Red Cross blood chairman Joseph DeRenzi announced that 179 persons registered at the bloodmobile at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church.

Among the 164 donors were 60 employees and soldiers of Tobyhanna Signal Depot who pushed their total to 762 pints after a record-breaking 702 pints earlier this year.

DeRenzi said it was an all-out effort by everyone which made the drive "so successful."

Shinn Principal Speaker At Jaycees Award Fete

FRANCIS T. Shinn will be the speaker at the annual distinguished service award of the Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce to be held at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, March 5, in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Francis Shinn

Shinn will use as his topic, "Poconos and Community Promotion." He and his brother, Jack, operate an area resort.

Shinn is president of Stroudsburg Rotary, president of the Blair Academy Parents Assn., past president of the Eastern Poconos Resort Assn. and is in charge of publicity for the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau.

He is also a former radio director for the National Broadcasting Co. and produced a number of television programs.

A letter was mailed to all industries and businesses in Monroe County this week, informing employees of the intent of the award and outlining qualifications.

Within the next week nomination forms will be mailed to the same employers, requesting them to name persons in their organization between 21 and 35 for the honor.

The award is designed to recognize the young man who has contributed most to his community in leadership ability and interest in civic projects.

4th Graders To Present Air Show

FOURTH-GRADERS from the Arlington Heights Elementary School will present a lesson on the Pennsylvania Germans, and an original poem composed by the whole class, Sunday at 3 p.m. on the first half hour of radio station WVPO's HORIZONS.

The class teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Detrick, says that this lesson is part of the unit on the history of Monroe County that her class is studying.

This is the second in a series of classroom demonstrations to be given during the first half hour of HORIZONS, every Sunday until May. Last week the initial program was introduced by John C. Litts, superintendent of schools.

During the second part of the program Dr. N.B. Naidoo, Indian professor from South Africa who is presently teaching at Trenton State College, will be interviewed by Dr. Alfred D. Sumborg of the East Stroudsburg State College.

Dr. Naidoo's topic will be "The Geography and Economy of South Africa." He spent a day this week at ESSC speaking to a special convocation of students and visiting several classes and campus clubs.

His presence at the local college was arranged by Dr. John C. Appel, chairman of the Foreign Cultures Committee.

Area Water Firm Seeks Rate Hike

THE Fairview Water Co., Mount Pocono, yesterday proposed an estimated $1,540 annual rate increase April 10 in bills of 422 customers in the Mount Pocono area of Monroe County.

All but two fire protection customers would be affected under a revised rate schedule filed with the Public Utility Commission.

Under the proposal, the base flat rate for homes would go from $20.25 to $23.50 annually. The base flat rate for commercial users would be raised from $25.30 to $31.

A charge for reconnecting water turned off for nonpayment of bills also would be increased from $2 to $5.

The utility said it needs the additional revenue to provide "satisfactory" service and earn enough to "keep pace with the growth in demand for water."

A study of the revenue boost was started by the PUC.

Expediency, Environment Led Strait Into Education

By Jim Shafer
Daily Record Reporter

"IT WAS a matter of economic expediency and environment that I entered the field of education," Dr. Bennet Strait, Monroe County Special Education Coordinator, said as he made himself more comfortable in the chair and began to go back over the years of his career.

Dr. Strait's father was a professor in Mansfield State College, then a Normal School, but he was not the only teacher in the family. His mother and his aunt were also teachers.

"I guess a fellow that is born into an atmosphere like that is bound to enter the field," he added.

He graduated from Mansfield High School in 1924 and entered the Normal School there and graduated in 1927.

He was unable to find a teaching position that year and decided to return to Mansfield State Teachers College — the new name of the school.

More Education

Dr. Strait graduated again, but this time with a Bachelors Degree in Education. He received his degree in 1930. Following graduation he applied for admittance to Rutgers University to work for his Masters Degree. He was accepted and received the degree in 1934.

The hard earned and respected doctorate degree was then his goal and he knew of the hard road that lay ahead before it would become a reality. But with continuous work he received his Doctor's Degree in 1932. He had enrolled in the National College of Audiology, Antioch, Ill., for the work.

Dr. Strait not only completed the graduate work there but also has taken courses in his field, at Pennsylvania State University, University of Virginia and City College of New York.

To help finance his education he has worked during summer months, as a book salesman; in a brass foundry, short order cook; tombstone carver; a latine and drill press operator, and a filling station attendant. These jobs helped defray the expenses of his education.

After talking of the various schools he attended Dr. Strait leaned back and said, "My first teaching position was in Hop Bottom in Susquehanna County, a location where Hops were grown, thus the name of the town. I was there two years."

"I left Hop Bottom to go to Leonardo, New Jersey, for one year and then to Fallington, Pennsylvania to take a position as science teacher," he added.

He later became principal of that school and remained until 1941, when he came to Monroe County to accept the appointment of head of Special Education, the position he holds today. His appointment was made by Superintendent John Litts.

In 1956, the State Legislature made it possible for Dr. Strait to have an assistant, one to work with him in Wayne and Pike Counties. This is when the county board of education approved the hiring of Dr. John Abbruzzese. Dr. Abbruzzese is presently supervisor of the special classes in the area.

Proud Of Work

Dr. Strait is very proud of the work he has done, and rightly so. As the interview continued he brought forth a letter from the parents of a son, now residing out of the country. It praised him for his work. It also told of the "other thing" he did to make a man out of their son. He requested that this not be mentioned but credit should be given where credit is due.

Dr. Strait's work takes him to all points of Monroe, Pike and Wayne Counties, into a room where there are children with partial hearing, poor sight and speech loss. Others handicapped from a birth defect, and to those with the mental ability not granted to all children.

He is married to the former Lydis Harris of Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, and are the parents of one daughter.

Dr. and Mrs. Strait reside in Smithfield Township, near Delaware Water Gap, in a home they built.

According to figures released by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau and the Hawaii Visitors Bureau respectively, about 305,000 persons vacationed in Hawaii, compared to more than 700,000 in the Poconos. The number of visitors from Pennsylvania to Hawaii declined during the year.

The PMVB reports it required 3,000 persons to operate tourist facilities in the Poconos last year. It received 40,000 requests from the traveling public in 1961.

Tractor Gap

The Soviet economic challenge to America is a real one, but those who read Pravda are likely to be more cheerful about our chances of meeting it when those who read only our own alarmists.

Pravda complained recently, for example, that the red tape in the Soviet tractor industry is so formidable that it has been 16 years since a new tractor model has been produced.

In the same period, the three major American tractor makers have marketed 75 new models. An American 1962 model tractor is about as superior to a 1946 model as a 1962 car is superior to a 1946 car, but cars have the same purpose and tractors have changed even more because new uses and flexibility have been added.

The average horsepower per tractor, has increased 65 per cent in this interval, for instance. This means that the farmer can operate more kinds of machines, bigger machines, and faster ones. Plows used to turn three or four furrows then; they plow up to eight now.

New gear boxes provide a variety of take-off speeds for doing all kinds of work with stationary farm machines. The ride has been made more comfortable, which reduces fatigue and enables older farmers to continue to work longer.

The reason for all this change is twofold. American tractor makers don't have to deal with politicians when they want to improve their product, or keep assembly lines running instead of shutting them down for changeover to meet government-set quotas. And competition forces tractor makers, and all other manufacturers, to improve the product on penalty of losing customers to a competitor who does.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Where Do They Lead?

American freedom and initiative can survive the first inch of intrusion by the federal government when it undertakes to intervene in local and state affairs. It's the succeeding inches—inches of intrusion that can't be anticipated or measured at the time—that cause the trouble.

The pattern is clear. Federal intervention in the fields of agriculture, construction, social relations and many others always has been undertaken to achieve desirable objectives and to an extent so limited that no danger has appeared to exist. But, once started, every one of them has grown and grown and grown until the means have not always justified the ends and the federal tail has wagged the local, private dog.

There is a body of opinion among agricultural leaders, for example, that milk regulation—which in itself is anathema to conservative-minded farmers—can best be handled on a federal rather than a state basis. They don't like government control and they proclaim their faith in a free market regulated only by the law of supply and demand. Yet they resist any suggestion that milk control be abolished and, in turn, contend that federal, rather than state, regulation would be more effective.

There is a reasonable basis for the latter contention. Milk, processed in Pennsylvania, may come from other states. Effective regulation, if regulation there must be, can be accomplished best on a regional, federal basis. But the latter also might become the first inch in broader federal control of the milk industry. It might lead to succeeding inches of regulation that would prove more troublesome than the malady that broader regulation would seek to alleviate.

The Wall Street Journal recently pointed to another example of the extent to which federal intervention spreads and spreads and spreads. "By the U. S. Agriculture Department's own admission," it states, "the federally sponsored school lunch program has become 'the largest single food service industry in the nation.'" It started out merely to help needy children have access to reasonably adequate lunches at moderate cost and to help the federal government dispose usefully of its surplus food. Now, some 80 per cent of the food used for these lunches is obtained by the schools from local suppliers and the cost turns out to be six times the value of the surplus food used in the program.

As The Journal concludes: "there are few more clear-cut examples than this of the way a federally sponsored program, begun with limited intentions, fastens itself upon localities and expands far beyond the original concept."

So, when innovations or the expansion of existing federally sponsored programs are proposed, we need to look beyond the immediate factors involved and to insist upon safeguards against their abuse and their unreasonable extension.

'Oh, Boy, I Could Use Him At CIA!'

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.
Are you confused by claims that chronic joint disability isn't arthritis?

Blame ancient doctors! They believed that "rheum"—a sick-making fluid—caused all joint troubles, which they called rheumatism. Later, scientific-minded doctors changed the name to arthritis—joint inflammation.

Even though we now know that worn-out, disabled joints aren't inflamed, they're still labeled osteo-arthritis.

It starts when the cartilage cushions between bones wear out. The joint crackles as bones grate against each other. Bony icicles form and muscles around the joint tighten into painful spasm. Hips, knees and spine wear out first because they carry a heavy load.

Adopt These Rules

While nothing cures osteo-arthritis, five simple rules help control it.

(1) Don't overwork damaged joints. Temporary aching stiffness cautions you to slow down. When the pain lasts all day, stop and rest the joint.

(2) Relieve pain inexpensively. Aspirin help. An infrared bulb, baking lamp or hot tub relaxes painful spasm. Don't overload the joint.

Rest And Reduce

Rest whenever you can and lose weight if you have to. Stand straight to prevent straining the joint.

(3) Keep the joint, limber. Daily, move each joint as far as it goes. Your doctor can show you how. So can pictures in "Strike Back at Arthritis". Send 40 cents to the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C., and ask for PHS Pub. 747.

(4) Strengthen weak muscles to steady the joint. Use weights—shoes or boots on your feet, books in your hand!

Save Steps

(5) Do your day's work with less joint action. Crutches, braces and special shoes may help. Rearrange your work area to save steps. With the stove closer to the work surface, Mom may save five miles a day.

Let your doctor prescribe stronger medicines and special treatments.

Call the condition arthritis, joint disability or rheumatism. The pain's the same, no matter what the name. And five simple rules help control it!

Taxes On State Lands

Editor, The Daily Record:

Recently your paper carried a series of articles concerning property values on land listed as non-tax paying lands within the various townships in Monroe County. These articles were interesting but in certain instances were misleading to the extent that the information was not complete.

The particular reference I have is to the listing of State Forest Land in the various townships. The article was correct in that this land is not taxed. It gave the impression that no direct revenue was received for this land by the various townships and the county.

It may come as a surprise to many people to know that there are payments in lieu of taxes to all townships and counties containing State Forest Land. The figure is set by Legislature and is based upon the acreage of State Forest Land in the county and township.

This payment is presently set at 10c for each acre of State Forest Land. The payments are divided as follows:
1. 5c per acre to the county.
2. 5c per acre to the township.

This payment to the township is made specifically for school and road purposes.

The State Forest Land in Monroe County presently consists of 8,622 acres. During 1961 payments totalling $431.10 were made to the county and $431.12 were made to the various townships for a total of $862.22.

The breakdown by townships is as follows:

Price Township — School $104.18, Road $104.18, Total $208.36.

Tunkhannock Township — School $51.35, Road $51.35, Total $102.70.

Middle Smithfield Township — School $38.63, Road $38.63, Total $77.26.

Barrett Township — School $21.40, Road $21.40, Total $42.80.

To some people this may mean to be a rather insignificant amount in light of the recent tax re-assessment program in Monroe County. It must be remembered, however, that in some areas of the Commonwealth this payment in lieu of taxes is as much as, and in many cases exceeds, the tax revenue from privately owned forest lands.

It should also be remembered that the Act requiring this payment in lieu of taxes has been in effect for many years. The original Act was passed in May, 1929, and amended in May, 1949.

I have not made any attempt in this letter to place a value to the residents of Monroe County on the intangible benefits derived from the State Forest Land in the county. The increased use of outdoor facilities on the public-owned State Forest Land has increased steadily each year.

Nor have I stressed the fact that much of the State Forest Land presently owned and administered by the Department of Forests & Waters was purchased as tax-delinquent land many years ago.

I wish to thank you for the opportunity to clarify a point which very often is misunderstood.

their contributions. Why, then, are the various drives missing their quotas? It is simply because there are too few people helping to make the personal contacts that contributors deserve. I urge each person reading this letter to ask themselves this question "Can I give one evening's time to show my support and interest in the American Red Cross?"

If you can honestly say "no", I can assure you that the Red Cross will never say "no", to you when you need them! If your answer is "yes", the Red Cross needs you — just call Red Cross Headquarters at HA 1-0690, leave your name, address and telephone number and we will welcome you as one of the team!

The Bible In Our Schools

Editor, The Daily Record:

In recent days, I have become very concerned over this issue of Bible reading in schools. Since this Bible which is read (without comment) is the basis of the three major religious groups of our nation, it does seem strange that we can deny so many children a right to hear it.

Is it true that only a minority who do not want their children to hear the scriptures can deny the right of others who do want their children to hear?

Do not we as citizens also have a right to say that in this school, for which we also pay taxes, we are glad to have the Bible read to our children?

The constitution was written by men who were not ashamed to admit they believed in a "Creator" and that such a Creator had given to humans certain inalienable rights.

In such a time when our government is fighting a Godless force, it would do us all good to remember our children need more than to be told to be good. They need strong words to stand in their hearts and lives to give them courage and strength to live good.

Not all the things that are written in textbooks are what I believe nor want my children to believe. Yet I do not expect to excuse my child from class while that certain fact is being discussed. If my child does not have a chance to hear both sides of a fact, how can he make a decision?

No one has said by law or otherwise you have to believe what you hear, but at least give our American children a chance to hear the scriptures as to what they believe.

As a Christian parent I want my children to hear the Bible in school. I'm glad when prayer is offered in public meetings other than church services. We are called a Christian nation. How can we be if we throw away the "Book"?

Cites CLU Position

Editor, The Daily Record:

In reading The Record on Monday morning, Feb. 6, I found a column of the activities of the Central Labor Union of Monroe and Pike Counties, AFL-CIO, of which I am secretary-treasurer.

It stated that Stuart Pipher was not endorsed by the CLU. As to Mr. Pipher requesting an endorsement, no mention was made. But a motion was put on record and seconded that we wouldn't endorse any candidate running for State Assembly. Let the working records of our young men talk for them.

We at Central Labor Union are a labor council, not a political organization. I wish to see this letter printed as is. We feel that Mr. Pipher has shown a great interest in his community and has tried his best to serve labor. What more can be asked of anyone?

On Volunteer Workers

Editor, The Daily Record

Recently, Mr. Editor, someone remarked that there are many, many people in Monroe County who are anxious to help out a worthy cause such as the American Red Cross. After spending weeks in an attempt to obtain volunteers to help in the Annual Fund Campaign, I am beginning to wonder where these people are.

Why does the sort of activity in charity work have to continually fall on 1% of the county population? The Red Cross and the many other fine organizations in this county benefit 100% of the citizens!

"I'm too busy-let somebody who has more time work on the campaign!" is a typical narrow attitude. If 10% of the county population gave just one evening's time to all the campaigns, the manhours produced would be far above the total required for the drives during the past year. Nobody is that busy regardless of how much they think they are.

"I've never asked them" for anything, why should I help?" is another choice example of "my little world" thinking. For get yourself! How about those that do need the help, the research, the counselling, the assurance that these charities offer day in and day out?

"I gave my blood on Iow Jima!" was a reply to a Blood Drive request made of a veteran. Too many thousands gave more than their blood — they gave their lives! Many, many thousands not only spilled blood on foreign soil, but are still giving blood through the Red Cross Program — not seeking recognition but rather realizing in their mature thinking that their blood will be administered when needed to someone whose life depends on it.

Red Cross money assures every resident of Monroe County that the Blood Bank Program will continue to provide blood at no cost — because, again, a few "unsung" veterans of the Blood Donor brigade keep the blood flowing. If you can't give blood, give of your time to help keep this facility active.

Monroe County residents are, in the main, most generous in

Praises Dr. Powers

Editor, The Daily Record:

In various editions we have read about some of the outstanding citizens in our community. Such an individual is Dr. Eugene P. Powers, head of the Education Department at the East Stroudsburg State College.

Dr. Powers has given many of his after-duty hours addressing our civic organizations. He is in constant demand to address various groups throughout Monroe County.

Why? Gene believes in a good wholesome community and most of all good government.

A man of Dr. Powers' calibre is a credit to any community and I think that Monroe County is very fortunate that we have a man like Dr. Powers.

Again three cheers and a vote of confidence from all who have had the pleasure of his association.

Q—Will Social Security officials credit me with any time in military service when I am about to retire?

A—Yes, Veterans with 90 days active service between September 16, 1940, and December 31, 1956, whose discharge was other than dishonorable, may receive fts. At that time proof of your credits of $160 for each month of active duty. These credits are not actually listed on your Social Security earnings record until you apply for benefits. At that time proof of your military service will be required.

The Ghosts

We are again being scared by ghosts. Again, we are being told that if we are not careful, the ghost of Hitler will emerge to bring misery upon all the world. This particular gambit is being used to attack West Germany, to weaken the influence of Adenauer, to justify attacks upon individuals as anti-Semites who are not.

It is the old story all over again of stirring up discontent and dissatisfaction to aid Soviet Russia. Many who do it may not be conscious of the game they are playing, just as in earlier years they supported Communists without realizing it.

Another ghost that is being raised in many quarters is Joe McCarthy. For quite a few years, we heard little about McCarthy. The man is dead. He organized no political party. He left behind him no mass force. Whatever he did, history will judge or he may pass away without much notice.

But nowadays whenever the issue of Communist activity is raised, the same McCarthy and McCarthyism are injected into the discussion as evidence of prejudice. The ghost of McCarthy serves the Communists well, for innocent persons, not involved in political action, shiver and shake at the thought of McCarthy who at no point of his career justified the attacks now made upon his ghost.

What they say is that he destroyed the innocent and when one asks for the name of an innocent, is never forthcoming. Then there is John Birch, an innocent martyr in China. John Birch was murdered by the Chinese Communists. He organized no society; he headed no movement; he pronounced no political doctrine. His name was picked up as a symbol of the viciousness of Chinese Communists.

There were a number of American missionaries and businessmen who were killed by Chinese Communists, but the name, John Birch, was selected by Robert Welch as the ghost that he would use as the symbol for his movement.

And so the ghost of John Birch, like other ghosts, stalks the land to frighten those who seek a variety of explanations for the events of the day.

Hitler and McCarthy were activists, but John Birch played no role in any agitational movement. A quiet, peaceful man he served his God in his own way. But today in the United States, thousands of persons who never knew John Birch, who never heard of him while he was alive, belong to a society that bears his name and associate him with principles of politics and economics of which he knew nothing when he lived. It is like John Brown's body which ever marches on.

This is the nature of agitational movements. I recall that when Sun Yat-sen was alive he was not a popular political leader. He had no great following. He lived quietly in a house in the French Concession of Shanghai and saw large numbers of visitors each day; he wrote articles and lectures which became books.

But the moment he died an enormous mausoleum was built in his honor in Nanking. It took a great human effort to climb the steps from the bottom to the top of that mausoleum. When one reached the top, he bowed before Sun's photograph. Then he descended the steps.

When he reached the bottom, he had paid his obsequies to a new god. What often irritated me was that so many who walked to the top of those steps had opposed Sun during his lifetime. Now, he was a political ghost whom men worshipped and his name is fought over between the Nationalists and the Communists, each claiming monopolistic ownership.

It was much the same with the mausoleum of Lenin in Moscow. When Lenin was alive he was the leader of a small, hated, but successful revolutionary movement. His ghost stalked the land and today men worship him as though he were a god.

When Stalin died, he was given room in the mausoleum and those who came to worship Lenin also worshipped Stalin but time passed and the ghost of Lenin lies alone. Those who seek to worship, find a god.

Thus men's names are used as ghosts to lead other men into directions that satisfy a lust for association with greatness but bring to them only confusion and hatred.

Husband and Wife

Elsie: "Willie and I have been downstairs in the dining room, Mr. Smith. We've been playing Husband and Wife."

Mr. Smith: "How do do that, my dear?"

Elsie: "Why, Willie sat at one end of the table and I sat at the other; and Willie said, 'This food isn't fit to eat!' and I said, 'It's all you'll get!' and Willie said, 'Damn!' and I got up and left the room!"

The doctor entered the patient's room, but returned and asked for a screwdriver. Five minutes later he was back and asked for a chisel and hammer. The distraught husband could stand it no longer. "Please, Doc, whatever is wrong with my wife?" he pleaded.

"Don't know yet," the perspiring medico answered. "Can't get my blasted bag open."

Just Between Us —

Who's dreaming of a white Christmas? Not me! All right, so it turned the whole countryside into a Christmas card; snow-laden pines, black and white etched trees, glittering lawns; but my Christmas cards — still in the red bowl somewhere under the curtains and pictures I've piled on the dining room table while the walls are being painted — are still there if I want to look at snow scenes without skidding on the road, getting snow down my boots and tracking slush on that nice new linoleum.

But at least we may have today to recover our equilibrium and for the roads to be clear enough so that people can get out for the dances, the suppers and special events scheduled for tonight. There's one thing about the dances, Cupid's Cotillion at the college and The King and Queen of Hearts Ball at the Y, the kids are young enough to walk there — although if they're going to do the Twist they may need a lift home.

The Lincoln Day dinner tonight will make it two late nights this week for the Republicans, an amazing number of whom stayed up Thursday night to see Richard Nixon on the Jack Paar show. In listening to him talking it over yesterday, they seemed agreed that if Nixon had been as relaxed, as photogenic and as full of humor on the TV debates, the election might have been a different story.

A different story, too, are the conflicting opinions about Jayne Mansfield's shipwreck, none of which seem to fit the traditional male picture of getting shipwrecked on a desert island with —

Struggling up the drive with the weekend groceries, I hope I remember to be thankful that at least I'm not being eaten alive by insects, and to imagine, with a touch of spite, that they've all gone south to feed on the lucky souls who headed that way just in front of the storm.

Unique Work Demands Ability And Training

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

Whenever you want to find a unique kind of work, a good procedure is to look within yourself and intelligently determine the special background, ability and training you alone can bring to a job. And while you're doing this, widen your circle of contacts and get to know as many people as you can.

"As far as I'm concerned, the more people you know, the better off you are when it comes to getting a unique job," says Princess Sonia Doria d'Angeli, who belongs to one of the oldest families of Italian nobility as well as the working staff at New York's Waldorf-Astoria.

Her Job
"I think I got my job as social consultant for this beautiful hotel because everything Italian seems to be so glamorous right now," she added, with a twinkle in her eye as surrounded by the glittering, lustrous spell an hour at the Waldorf always casts, we talked about her work.

"Actually," she said more seriously, "I'm really here because one of my Italian friends was asked if he knew of someone Italian who would like to come to the Waldorf and plan weddings, luncheons, fashion shows, dinner parties and gala balls."

Because this kind of entertainment was the sort of thing Princess Doria — who speaks four languages — had been doing for most of her life, she fit the job requirements well.

Before she entered the working world, Princess Doria's background and training was a cosmopolitan life in Europe. After her birth in Italy, she spent part of her childhood in Russia. Later, she was educated in Florence and in England.

During her married life she lived abroad and, since she constantly met and entertained people in international circles, she gradually built up her ability to arrange parties and expand her contacts with people.

Chicken On The Menu Can Be Varied With Oranges

There's a chicken dish to suit everyone's taste! With chicken so popular, plentiful, and economical, it's a wise menu choice year round. Make each serving time exciting and different.

Richly browned chicken cooked in a tempting sauce of orange juice, canned condensed cream of chicken soup, and a touch of ginger and nutmeg will be well accepted by all. It's colorful, too with the addition of orange slices, sweet potatoes, and toasted almonds. A perfect entree . . . with flavor appeal and eye appeal . . . for a cold dreary winter day.

Crisp celery sticks make a nice accompaniment to this warming good chicken dish.

*Symbolic—

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Robinsons don't go to my church — they belong to another.

But I'll tell you there are no finer people in our town than Cliff and Berta, and their kids, Polly and Joe. They're good neighbors . . . friends who'd stick by you in trouble . . . people with standards, ideals.

And other folks around town feel the same way about the Robinsons. Tradepeople say it's a pleasure to do business with them. Community leaders admire the way they pitch in and help.

So I say this picture is symbolic. For if we'd stop and figure WHAT MAKES FINE PEOPLE LIKE THE ROBINSONS . . . why this whole town would be in church next Sunday!

Home Delivered Milk

Monroe Consumers Paid Less Than U. S. Average

CONSUMERS in Monroe County paid 26.5¢ per quart of home delivered milk compared to average consumer milk prices that ranged from 28.5¢ to 29.1¢ in every state surrounding Pennsylvania except Ohio, according to the January issue of the United States Department of Agriculture's Fluid Milk and Cream Report.

During the latest period reported by the Department dairy farmers selling milk for use locally were paid an average of .76¢ more than the national average price of $5.49 per hundred pounds of Class 1 milk used for fluid bottled milk. Dairy farmers shipping milk into local markets received $6.25 for Class 1 milk.

Barrett Twp. Demos To Meet Monday

BARRETT — The Barrett Democratic Men's Club will meet Monday, Feb. 12 at 8 p.m. in the Barrett Elementary Center.

There will be a nomination and election of officers for the new year, filling the office of president, vice president, secretary and treasurer and master at arms.

The club, in reviewing the first year of operation, found mixed success, having worked for and supported the winning county candidates, Warren Loney, treasurer and John Foelker, county coroner.

In the Barrett backyard, the political picture remained confused, the club winning one key office: Harry Evans, tax collector and losing the important office of township supervisor to Republican, Letcher Caruthers.

The large proportion of individualistic Democratic voters is a situation which will bear close watching in the coming gubernatorial election, and the club is going to strive hard for a positive, hard hitting leadership in Barrett as well as on the county level, trying to bring out the Democratic vote.

Pvt. Rall Completes Training

ARMY PVT. Arthur A. Rall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Rall, Route 1, East Stroudsburg, completed six weeks of basic unit armor training under the Reserve Forces Act program at The Armor Center, Fort Knox, Ky., Feb. 3.

During this training Rall participated in section and platoon level tactical problems and applied skills learned in his previous eight weeks of armor training, including the ability to drive the Army's medium tank and fire the 90-millimeter tank gun.

Rall received basic combat training at Fort Dix, N.J.

The 20-year-old soldier was graduated from Jamaica High School, Queens, N.Y., in 1960.

Walker Blasts JFK Privilege

CHICAGO (AP)—Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker said Thursday that President Kennedy has gagged the Senate military censorship inquiry and thus, placed the nation in dire peril.

Walker, who seeks Democratic nomination as candidate for governor of Texas, quit the Army after he was relieved of his command in Germany for using unapproved material in indoctrination of his troops.

He told a news conference that what is being censored "is a hard line against the enemy, the Communists both at home and abroad."

A full hearing on censorship of military officials, he said "would be in the best interests of national security and our country."

Walker will address a rally to-night in McCormick Place sponsored by a citizens committee headed by Robert E. Wood, former chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; and Adm. A.C. Burrows (Ret.).

Charity Aid To Hospitals Below Costs

STATE-AID to hospitals for care of charity patients has fallen far below hospitalization costs, the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania has informed members of the Legislature in an effort to secure greater reimbursement for 178 voluntary, nonprofit hospitals throughout the state.

Twenty years ago the statutory reimbursement rate paid to hospitals by the State was only 50 cents less than the average daily cost of caring for the sick poor. Last year the fixed daily rate of state-aid was $11.47 less than the $21.47 average cost of caring for charity patients in the voluntary hospitals.

A chart prepared for the legislators shows that the hospitals actually have been receiving only $8.00 a day for charity care instead of the $10.00 statutory rate because of inadequate appropriation by the legislature. Thus, in 1961 the state's reimbursement rate was $13.47 below the cost of charity care on a state-wide average.

The hospitals are asking the State to reimburse them at the rate of $17.50 per day for the care of indigent inpatients under 65 years of age. The hospital association's chart shows that the average daily ward cost is now $22.56. Hospitals receive no state funds for care of charity patients who are treated in outpatient departments and clinics.

Nip Attack

BANGOR — East Stroudsburg High's foul shooting ability and Bangor's lack of it, paid off in a 48-45 Lehigh-Northampton League win for the Cavaliers.

It was the second L-N win for the Cavaliers, both of them against Bangor and the fifth Pocono-Slate Belt win for East Stroudsburg. East Stroudsburg, although outscored 19-18 in field goals, converted 12 of 19 foul shots, while Bangor made good on only seven of 19 free throws.

It was the last basketball game to be played in the Bangor gym. The remainder of Bangor's games will be played on the road and next year the Slaters will move into a new school.

It was a big second period that won the game for the Cavaliers, although they had to fight off a last period Bangor rally.

Trail At First East Stroudsburg trailed 9-6 after one period but scored 17 in the second frame, while Bangor could get only 10 points.

The Cavaliers, playing a possession type of game, built their lead to 34-27 after three periods. The Cavaliers used a press for the first three quarters.

The Cavaliers were never behind after the first period but Bangor managed to pull within one point on several occasions.

With 23 seconds left in the game, the Cavaliers held only 46-45. But Jack Van Horn drew a pair of foul shots for East Stroudsburg and sank them both. It was Van Horn's foul shooting that preserved the victory for East Stroudsburg. He hit five of six foul line attempts in the last minutes of the game.

Senior Glenn Kane was the high point player for East Stroudsburg. Kane had seven field goals and a foul shot for 15 points. Don Wescott followed with 12 points, mostly on corner jump shots.

Van Horn and Earl Palmer had nine points each and Brian Farris completed the Cavalier total with three points.

John Heard was Bangor's leading scorer. He had six field goals for 12 points, while Richard Snyder added 10 points.

Jesse Owens' broad jump record was the oldest on the books. But when it was broken by Ralph Boston last year, Boston was using a specially raised runway.

Uelses' record must stand. He accomplished the feat within the rules of pole vaulting and to change the rules after the record has been made is something that cannot be allowed.

S. U. Girls Beaten 34-24 By Slatington

Grace Deihl scored 22 points Friday, to lead Slatington's girls basketball team to a 34-24 win over Stroud Union at Stroudsburg.

Stroud Union was limited to 13 points until the final period, when it finally unloaded its scoring punch. Deihl, who leads Slatington in scoring, had her total on nine field goals and four foul shots.

Tricia Everitt again led Stroud Union in scoring. She had four field goals and eight foul shots for 16 points. Elizabeth Martz completed the Mountaineer scoring with four field goals.

Next step in the litigation probably will be an appeal to a higher court.

Follows NBA

The New York commission followed the example of the NBA which withdrew its recognition from Moore about a year ago for failure to defend his title within a reasonable period. Both the NBA and the New York group require 11 light heavyweight champions to defend every six months.

Johnson was knocked out by Moore in a title fight in 1954. Moore had been recognized as champion in New York, Massachusetts, California and Mass.

Gen. Melvin Krulwich, the chairman of the New York commission, pointed out that since the end of August 1959 Moore has fought only one title bout. That was last June 10 when he outpointed Italian Gino Rinaldi in New York.

In London, J. Onslow Fane, president of the British Board of Boxing Control said his organization also probably would de throne Moore.

Archie still can boast of being the champ in California and Massachusetts for the time being.

Moore won the 175-pound division crown from Joey Maxim Dec. 17, 1952, and set a light heavyweight record for both the length of his reign and for the number of defenses—9.

Bragg Upset Over Uelses' Vaulting

DON BRAGG, until a week ago, the world's greatest pole vaulter, is now shooting for the title of "Sour Grapes King."

Until a Marine lance (that's fitting) corporal, John Uelses, vaulted more than 16 feet last weekend, Bragg had gone higher than any other vaulter.

Bragg is still the world record holder, because his mark was set outdoors but that is little consolation to Bragg. Bragg claims that Uelses was able to go over 16 feet because he used a fiber-glass pole, while Bragg uses a tapered steel pole.

The charge against the fiber-glass implement is that it does more work than the vaulter. The glass pole catapults the vaulter over the bar is Bragg's contention and he is probably right.

There is some talk among track officials that Uelses' indoor mark of 16 feet, three-quarter inches may not be allowed because of the glass pole.

If this is done, it will be a type of ex post facto, since the glass pole has been in use for almost a dozen years and no one made a squawk until Uelses became the first vaulter to go over 16 feet.

Uelses Has Lost With New Pole

Bragg could have used the fiber glass pole and many of the vaulters that he has beaten in competition have used the glass pole. Bragg has beaten Uelses when the Marine was using glass. Almost lost in the controversy are the words of Cornelius Warmerdam, who for years held the vaulting mark.

Warmerdam set the vaulting mark more than 20 years ago and he did it using a bamboo pole, which was once regarded as the only type pole to use.

When Warmerdam was asked to comment on Uelses' jump and the use of the fiber glass pole he was quick to point out that there cannot be one record for bamboo another for steel poles and a third for fiber glass.

Warmerdam could have raised a stink some nine years ago when Bob Richards became the second man to go clear 15 feet, because Richards did it with a steel pole. But Warmerdam said nothing.

A few days ago a New York sportswriter came out against Uelses fast because of the use of the fiber glass pole. Yet it was this same writer that suggested that Roger Maris should be credited with the home run record because he hit 61 home runs in 162 games and Babe Ruth hit 60 in 154 games.

No Mention Of Maris' Lighter Bat

The writer didn't seem to care that Maris used a much lighter bat than Ruth (although Ruth could have used a lighter stick just as Bragg can use fiber-glass) or that many track records that are being broken recently are being aided by better equipment.

Jesse Owens' broad jump record was the oldest on the books. But when it was broken by Ralph Boston last year, Boston was using a specially raised runway.

Uelses' record must stand. He accomplished the feat within the rules of pole vaulting and to change the rules after the record has been made is something that cannot be allowed.

Jacks Open Cage Season At Newfoundland Tonight

The Pocono Jacks bring amateur basketball back to the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area.

The Jacks, composed mainly of former college players take on Newfoundland's Blue Angels at 8:30 at Southern Wayne High School. There will be a preliminary game at 7:30.

There are actually several amateur basketball leagues sponsored by the YMCA but no clubs that play outside of the "Y."

Tonight's game will be a strong test for the Jacks. Newfoundland has never lost a game on its home court and although the club lacks size, it has tremendous shooting strength.

The top Angel scorers are Bob Haag and Johnny Hinds. Both players are capable of hitting for 40 or more.

Led By Casey The Jacks, coached by Curt Prins, boast six former college players, including Bernie Casey, former all-Mid-American Conference player at Toledo University.

The 6-4, 205 pound Casey, who is serving at Tohyhanna Signal Depot, was approached by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Assn. after college graduation but decided to go to graduate school rather than play pro ball.

Casey led the conference in field goal accuracy. Other Jacks' players are Bob Wert, Stroud Union High basketball coach and former Elizabethtown star; Ken Hendricks, Tony Salerno and Rick Carroll, who played for East Stroudsburg State; Wilmont Smith, Stroud Union junior varsity hoop coach and ex-ESSC performer; Lem Isom, one of the leading scorers for the past several years in the YMCA Leagues and Ralph Davis, another Depot player.

Funds from his fights with Floyd Patterson have been tied up since last March when Patterson knocked out the Swede at Miami Beach.

Next step in the litigation probably will be an appeal to a higher court.

Follows NBA

The New York commission followed the example of the NBA which withdrew its recognition from Moore about a year ago for failure to defend his title within a reasonable period. Both the NBA and the New York group require 11 light heavyweight champions to defend every six months.

Johnson was knocked out by Moore in a title fight in 1954. Moore had been recognized as champion in New York, Massachusetts, California and Mass.

Gen. Melvin Krulwich, the chairman of the New York commission, pointed out that since the end of August 1959 Moore has fought only one title bout. That was last June 10 when he outpointed Italian Gino Rinaldi in New York.

In London, J. Onslow Fane, president of the British Board of Boxing Control said his organization also probably would de throne Moore.

Archie still can boast of being the champ in California and Massachusetts for the time being.

Moore won the 175-pound division crown from Joey Maxim Dec. 17, 1952, and set a light heavyweight record for both the length of his reign and for the number of defenses—9.

Ruth League Hits Little Loop Jump

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The national president of the Babe Ruth League said Friday the Little League is trying to monopolize youngsters' baseball.

"We do not approve of nor enjoy the possibility of a pending monopoly," said Walter B. Cocks of Des Moines in a statement released through the Babe Ruth League's office in Trenton, N.J.

Cocks said the Little League is moving its activities into the next older age group—13 to 15 years—in which the Babe Ruth League is active.

The Little League is composed of boys 8 to 12 years old and has more than half a million youngsters participating in its program. Babe Ruth had 140,000 boys active last year.

Should Graduate "Young ball players should be allowed to 'graduate' from one league level to another level, distinctly separated by name and affiliation," Cocks said.

"Control of so vital a part of our great national pastime in the field of youth activities should not be entrusted to the dictatorial powers of one league."

The Little League announced last year that it was planning a senior Little League.

The Pony (13-14) and Colt (14-16) leagues also have said that the Little League was "muscling in" on their territory.

Baseball Team Meets Sunday

THE Anasomink Baseball team of the Pocono Mountain League will hold an organizational meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the home of manager Dick Miller, 139 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg.

Players interested in playing with the club this year are asked to attend. The club hopes to play several night games this year with out-of-town teams.

Stroud Union Wins 63-46 Lehigh Valley Loss

SLATINGTON HIGH used a 34 point first half to trigger it to a 63-46 win over Stroud Union last night at Stroudsburg.

Stroud Union, which dropped its second game in the second half of play of the Lehigh Valley League, trailed only 14-13 after one period but was limited to nine points in the second quarter, while Slatington pumped in 20 points.

The Mounties, who beat Whitehall in their last outing, outscored Slatington 17-16 in the third period and it looked as if they might be able to catch the Slaters with a good fourth frame, performance.

But Slatington had 13 points in the last eight minutes and Stroud Union managed only nine.

Loney connects again Stroud Union's Warren Loney, who at one point in the season was among the league scoring leaders, found the touch again and connected for 20 points, 10 of them coming on foul shots.

Ed Nevil added 11 points on three field goals and five foul shots, Henry Ray had eight, while Glenn Blasing scored a lone field goal and Danny Hill and Bob Messler had one point each.

Dear Abby

Round Robin Invitation!

Dear Abby: My husband and I received a wedding invitation from a friend of mine whose son was being married. Written on the invitation was a note, "Say, Mable, this is for the whole family." Abby, our six children are all married and have children of their own, all living miles apart.

and my friend expected me to get them all together. Just for her sake, I telephoned each one and not one would accept an invitation like that. "My husband said he didn't blame them. Then he got stubborn and refused to go, so I had to stay home because it would have looked bad to go without him.

Now my friend is down on me. These people could well have afforded an invitation for each family. Was I wrong?

BUSTED FRIENDSHIP

Dear Busted: I don't blame your children for not attending. Perhaps you should have called your friend and suggested she send each of your married children an invitation if she wanted them at the wedding. You and your husband should have attended. Why make a formal mountain out of an informal molehill?

Dear Abby: When a girl asks a boy to a girl-ask-boy party, is she supposed to pick him up, pay for everything and see him home?

BIG ARGUMENT

Dear Big: No. The girl asks the boy if he will ESCORT her. After that, the date is on him.

Dear Abby: My wife died a month ago and I am 57 years old. She was a good wife, and I know she wouldn't care if I got married again. I am a lonely man, and anyone who went through what I did would understand.

I met a woman at a drive-in. It was funny how we met. She is 52 and her husband has been dead for about four years. We sure did hit it off great! We want to get married. We know people will say we knew each other before my wife died, but that isn't true. We figure they will talk about us if we get married in two months or two years from now. I think we will make it three months, and let them talk. I would like your advice.

WANTS TO MARRY

Dear Wants: The customary wait before re-marrying is one year. But wait as long as your conscience dictates.

Confidential To Janet: Marry him anyway. Every mad student has a skeleton in his closet.

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

Painter's Problem

LONDON (AP)—Russian artist N.N. Zhukov said in a Moscow radio broadcast that Soviet painters suffer from gigantomania—a love of sheer size—and blamed it on government demands in the Stalin era. Canvases were, and still are, mainly 3 to 5 meters—about 9 to 16 feet—square, Zhukov complained.

St. Peter Repairs

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Officials said the floor of the portico leading to St. Peter's, the world's largest Roman Catholic church, will be repaired soon for the first time since 1888. The repairs will be part of the restorations to be completed before the Ecumenical Council opens Oct. 11.

Urge Contest Ban

TOKYO (AP)—Twelve women's organizations in East Java have urged a ban on beauty contests. The ladies, according to an Indonesian news agency dispatch, called the contests "a deviation of national identity."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1962
March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Certain inclination toward haste, carelessness, and regarding the usual sensible rules or regulations. Watch your step that it may also be a less weightier one, with fewer self-built barriers.
April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Many favorable and physical (don't overdo). Must study everything well. Take all philosophical, the "maybes." Avoid last-minute rushing.
May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—A few days this month not so favorable. This one advises simplicity of approach and action to sidestep hindering complications. Be direct but not too short, restrained but not too.
